Operating policies

“You” the customer are paying for time on my digital servers. Our orders are not automated but hand filled. New customers will get a welcome email displaying the customer account number, username, password, and all other important information when your order is filled. Pre-existing customers will receive an email when your order is filled stating that your account has been updated. If the service is not working properly you can reach out to our customer service for help. If we can't help you we will do our best to rectify the situation. Our policy is to fill all orders the same day. If your order is not filled the same day you can see our refund policy.

Delivery of Product

“Since our service is digital all filled orders will receive an email when your order is filled. This email will be time stamped and will include your name, account number, your new expiration date and time along with a physical display of remaining days. This email along with the verification of service is your “proof of delivery”.

Return policies

If you use the service and decide you no longer want to use us we can cancel anytime. Refunds only available within 24 hours of the purchase.
